EXAMINER'S AMENDMENT

Claims 1-20 are pending.

An examiner's amendment to the record appears below. Should the changes and/or additions be unacceptable to applicant, an amendment may be filed as provided by 37 CFR 1.312. To ensure consideration of such an amendment, it MUST be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee.

Authorization for this examiner's amendment was given in a telephone interview with Stephen Swift on 6/15/04.

The application has been amended as follows:

Claims 1-11 are deleted.

Claim 12 is amended, amended claim 12 is as follows:

12. (Currently Amended) A method of desalinating seawater, comprising the steps of:

allowing seawater to pass through an inlet with a check valve into a brine enclosure; said inlet located far enough below the surface of the sea for the pressure of the body of sea water above the inlet to power reverse osmosis;

reverse osmosis of the seawater as water molecules pass from the brine enclosure through a membrane into a fresh water enclosure, while the membrane blocks the passage of sodium and chlorine ions; maintaining a pressure differential across the membrane by pumping desalinated water out of the fresh water enclosure; and pumping water having an increased concentration of salt out of the brine enclosure to a brine return that is an elongated channel that passes along the sea floor, from an area where the sea floor has a higher elevation near an inlet of the brine return, to an area where the sea floor has a sufficiently lower elevation near an outlet of the brine return to enable brine flow by gravity; whereby, [if] when the pumping is discontinued after the brine return is filled with the water having an increased concentration of salt, the force of gravity will cause the water having an increased concentration of salt to continue to flow through the brine return.

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 12-20 are allowed.

The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance:

The closest prior art is Cole (US 3,456,802), which teaches a deep-sea submerged reverse osmosis system. Cole teaches an inlet which is at the surface of the sea, and a brine discharge at the bottom of the sea, but does not teach the element of claim 12, "inlet located far enough below the surface ... for the pressure of the ...water above the inlet to power reverse osmosis". Another reference, Watkins (US 5,366,635) teaches a system that is submerged under a body of water, with inlet at a level below the surface. However, the brine outlet in the reference is at the same level as the seawater inlet. It would also be not obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to combine these references or any others to arrive at the cited limitations of claim 12, because, even though there is teaching in the references of providing the pressure required for reverse osmosis by the height of water above the membrane (including water in the feed line from inlet to the membrane), there is no teaching or suggestion in any of the references for the need for pressure provided by the body of the water above the inlet to power the reverse osmosis.

Any comments considered necessary by applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the issue fee. Such submissions should be clearly labeled "Comments on Statement of Reasons for Allowance."
